OIG Investigation Reveals Failure to Report Abuse: Consumer Voice Calls for Comprehensive CMS Action

A new report from the US Department of Health and Human Services Office of Inspector General (OIG) shows a disturbingly high level of potential abuse and neglect in skilled nursing facilities, and failures at every level of the system designed to protect vulnerable nursing home residents. The report, Incidents of Potential Abuse and Neglect at Skilled Nursing Facilities Were Not Always Reported and Investigated, found that 1 in 5 high-risk hospital emergency room Medicare claims for treatment in 2016 were the result of potential abuse or neglect of residents in a skilled nursing facility. Equally disturbing, nursing homes failed to report the majority - 84% - of these claims to state survey agencies as required by federal law and regulation, and state survey agencies failed to report 67 of 69 claims - 97% - to local law enforcement as required. In turn, the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS) did not track these incidents.

Consumer Voice calls on CMS to use its authority to hold nursing homes, the state survey agencies, and itself accountable for doing the job the public entrusts - and pays them - to carry out. There is much more that CMS can and should do to address not just reporting, but also detecting, investigating and preventing abuse and neglect. Protective measures include:

- Ensuring that people with certain criminal convictions are not hired to work in nursing homes
- Requiring surveyors themselves to report potential abuse/neglect to law enforcement when conducting a survey
- Mandating adequate staffing levels so front-line staff are not stretched so thin that it becomes impossible to provide quality care

World Elder Abuse Awareness Day Observed June 15

On June 11, 2019, the fifth World Elder Abuse Awareness Day (WEAAD) global summit took place in Washington, D.C., celebrating the 15 year anniversary of WEAAD. The theme of this year’s summit was Lifting Up Voices, with the goal of lifting up the voices of survivors, empowering and protecting elders from abuse and financial exploitation. Leaders in aging and elder abuse prevention techniques came together from around the country to share what they are doing to prevent elder abuse. The summit focused on topics including:

- Technology’s Role in Protecting Against Abuse Later in Life
- The Role of Media in Elder Financial Exploitation
- The FINRA Rule: One Year Later
- Suspicious Activity Reports on Elder Financial Exploitation
- Newly Expanded Records Request Form

Materials Available from NORC's Trauma-Informed Care Webinar

Materials are available from NORC's recent webinar - Trauma-Informed Care: Nursing Home Responsibilities and Ombudsman Program Advocacy. Ensuring that residents who are trauma survivors receive culturally competent, trauma-informed care is one of several new federal requirements which will go into effect when Phase 3 of the revised federal nursing home regulations are implemented November 28, 2019. Attendees learned about trauma-informed care, the new federal requirement, how trauma-informed care relates to resident-centered care, and what this means for Ombudsman program advocacy and communication. Presenters included Nancy Kusmaul, Assistant Professor at the University of Maryland Baltimore County, and Patricia Hunter, Washington State LTC Ombudsman. Access materials on NORC's website.

Social Security Error Puts 250,000 Medicare Beneficiaries' Coverage At Risk

Because of a "processing error" from the Social Security Administration (SSA), at least 250,000 Medicare beneficiaries may receive bills for premiums they already thought they had paid. In January, the SSA mistakenly neglected to deduct premiums from some seniors' Social Security checks and didn't pay the insurance plans. The error applies to private drug policies and Medicare Advantage plans that provide both medical and drug coverage and substitute for traditional government-run Medicare. The error will mean that some Medicare beneficiaries will receive bills for as many as five months of premiums, or they could get cancellation notices. For more information about the error, read the article in Kaiser Health News and the FAQs on the SSA’s website.
