

Visitors

Visitors we all like to have,
They are like a healing salve.
Some we've known a very long time,
Friends or relatives, so sublime.

They cheer us up, make us forget,
Some things we dislike or make us fret.
Refreshing it is to have good friends,
To meet our needs or tying our loose ends.

Sometimes it's not just, things that we need,
But attention and friendship, yes indeed!
Some make us laugh, true laughter within,
Carries us daily our ways to amend.

Each visitor I have is so different,
They care for me, it's evident.
Each help me in their own special way,
I can only thank them, their goodness to say.

Some residents here, have no one come in,
I pray for them, share things, their friendship
to win.

We all need attention, without it's a sin,
There's staff here that sees it, they reach out to them.

Humans abandon, ones they once loved,
God never abandons, He sees from above.
He looks down from heaven, upon this great
earth,
Knows the hearts of all men, and he truly
does search.

He puts it in hearts, for people to care,
Ones are neglected, He makes sure all's fair.
So if you feel you are hurt and neglected
today,
Try to be cheerful, blessings are on the way.

Set your dear heart, on to the Lord,
Be happy in Him, He will even the score.
